Choir Notes: Today's anthem, Sweet, Sweet Spirit was written in 1962 by Doris Akers, an African American composer and gospel singer who directed the Sky Pilot Choir, the first interracial choir in Los Angeles, California. According to Doris, the song came about after her choir had prayer before a Sunday morning service. The choir was praying fervently and it was time for the service to begin. Doris finally had to say, "We have to go. I hate to leave this room and I know you hate to leave. There is such a sweet, sweet spirit in this place." Thus the song was born. The arrangement we are singing was done in 1965 by Kurt Kaiser and is the one most often sung today.
